Q: Will forming a union change my visa status or harm me as an international student?

No.

Watch out for misinformation! Look for other answers around campus.

Forming a union will not affect your visa status or immigration status in any way. International students and U.S. citizens have the same rights to participate in and support our union. Across the country, international students have made significant gains from forming grad employee unions, including job security protections, protections from discrimination, and improvements to compensation.

The bottom line:

Forming a union will have no impact on your visa status. A union can provide needed security and protections for international students.
